Man slain in front of young son

The victim was dropping off the boy at the mother's home when he was killed ◗ He was not known to police ◗ Investigators have not linked the murder to gangs or drugs but say the shooting was targeted

KRISTEN THOMPSON
@METRONEWS.CA

A three-year-old boy sat strapped into the back seat of his father's car when the man was gunned down just a few feet away in New Westminster.

Police say it appears Nelson Ramirez Guerrero, 33, was shot at in his car before he stumbled onto the road, where he died near 10th and Cornwall streets on Monday night.

"The young boy was not harmed physically," said RCMP Cpl. Dale Carr with the Integrated Homicide Investigation Team.

Carr said he's hoping outrage over the shooting will prompt witnesses to come forward.

"It's incomprehensible how someone would want to move forward with a ... murder knowing full well that there's a small child that could be in the line of fire," he said. "It demonstrates a callous disregard for human life."

Honour House meets challenge

$4.6-million facility near Queens Park in New Westminster is the first of its kind in Canada

STEPHANIE ORFORD
VANCOUVER@METRONEWS.CA

When Capt. Trevor Greene returned to Canada after being seriously wounded in Afghanistan, he and his family had nowhere to stay while he underwent rehabilitation in Vancouver.

Greene, who was struck in the head with an axe, will officially open Honour House in New Westminster at 2 p.m. today.

Honour House president and former Vancouver parks commissioner Allan DeGenova said the building will be "a home away from home" for injured soldiers, first responders (ambulance, fire, and police) and their families as they undergo medical treatment in Metro Vancouver.

"It's a way for us to say thank you for everything they do, day in and day out."
ALLAN DEGENOVA

In addition to offering temporary housing, Honour House's supportive environment will help residents recover from trauma like post-traumatic stress disorder.

Today's opening is "a reality for everyone who thought it was just a dream," said DeGenova.

Two years ago, now-retired Canadian general Rick Hillier gave DeGenova a coin, challenging him to build the house.

Now that coin will go up on the wall in the new facility, symbolizing the challenge met.

Regiment up in arms over mace

A century-old mace belonging to Vancouver's Seaforth Highlanders has gone AWOL.

The mace was stolen from New Westminster on Oct. 29 when the car it was inside was jacked from a Queens Park Arena parking lot.

"It's irreplaceable and has significant sentimental value for the regiment and Vancouver," said Capt. Bill Annand of the Seaforth Highlanders.

100 The mace was presented as a gift to the Seaforth Highlanders in 1910, when the unit was formed.

The mace isn't scheduled to appear at tomorrow's Remembrance Day ceremonies, but it was supposed to head the band at the regiment's centennial celebration on Nov. 27, Annand said.

Plenty of plaudits for headlock heroism

KRISTEN THOMPSON
@METRONEWS.CA

Accolades are pouring in for a Vancouver man — a paraplegic who came to the rescue of a shop clerk being threatened by an irate customer. Larry Skopnik, who uses a wheelchair, grabbed the man and held him in a headlock until police arrived.

Vancouver police Const. Jana McGuinness said police don't recommend bystanders get involved in criminal situations.

"We wouldn't ever criticize someone who does ... but you don't know how desperate a person may be," she said.

Skopnik has been inundated with Facebook posts praising him as a hero.

Messages tell Skopnik the world needs more people like him, telling him he did the right thing despite the consequences.

Quebec poker champ eyeing more 'big scores'

First Canadian to win World Series of Poker's main event

ISAAC BREKKEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Jonathan Duhamel won nearly $9 million in the World Series of Poker in Las Vegas.

43
With many of poker's biggest names watching, Duhamel took the last of his opponent's chips after 43 hands.

$8.94 million

- Duhamel, who left the Université du Québec à Montréal during his second year studying finance, said he doesn't know how he'll spend most of his winnings, but pledged $100,000 to a foundation for kids in Montreal. Duhamel worked a series of odd jobs before playing poker full-time, mostly in cash games.
- The score was Duhamel's third cash in more than a dozen tournaments at the summer series, a 57-event spectacle that attracts big-time rounders, wealthy amateurs and smaller tournament winners.
- But Monday's win – worth $8,944,310 – dwarfs the $43,000 he won in three earlier events this year.
- Duhamel hopes that money and the prestige of being a champion will help take his young career even further. "I'm going to be playing all those big tournaments and try to make other big scores," he said. "I'll be there next year in the World Series and try to do my best again."

Quebec poker professional Jonathan Duhamel said he worked a series of bad jobs before getting into cards and making his living online at tables with $5 and $10 minimums.

Now — if he wants — the Montrealer might never have to work again.

Duhamel won the World Series of Poker title and $8.94 million on Monday night, becoming the first Canadian to take down the no-limit Texas Hold 'em main event in Las Vegas.

"It is surreal. I could never dream of that. It's so huge — so big — it's a dream come true for me," Duhamel said after winning the gold bracelet. "I don't know what to think right now, I don't even know what I feel. It's just — it's amazing."

Recounting the game, Duhamel said he felt good about his chances as he took his seat.

"I was very confident about my game, so I knew it wasn't over of course, there was a lot of poker to be played, but I liked my chances."

"I think I play a great game so I knew I could do it if I made no mistakes."

It didn't hurt that Duhamel started the night with a big chip lead and put away John Racener before the 24-year-old tournament specialist could pick up good cards.

"He was patient and kind of threw me off a little bit," said Racener, of Port Richey, Fla., who got his start in poker by turning a $50 stake from his mom into $30,000 within six months.

"I was like, 'Wow, you know, this is going to be harder than I thought," Racener said.

"I was aggressive on the final table, so I wanted to mix it up a little bit," Duhamel said. "I didn't fold at all, but I limped a little bit just to try to confuse him and have a good balance in my game."

Now, Duhamel can think about a bigger future in poker and buying Canadiens season tickets — or perhaps dropping a ceremonial first puck before a game.

"To drop the puck would mean so much to me, I mean, 'cause since I'm two years old I've watched the Montreal Canadiens on TV," he said. "I played hockey all my life."

He said he will continue his game and will return to the tournament next year.

"I'm going to be playing all those big tournaments and try to make other big scores," he said. "I'll be there next year in the World Series and try to do my best again.

The Dutch nose best

Scratch-and-sniff cards distributed by police in the Netherlands in effort to get civilians to identify and turn in illegal grow-ops

Here's a crime fighting idea not to be sniffed at: Dutch police have asked citizens to use their noses to help track down illicit cannabis plantations.

Police and municipalities in Rotterdam and The Hague this week mailed 30,000 scratch and sniff cards that give off the pungent odour of cannabis plants to help people identify the smell of a plantation.

"From now on, you'll be able to smell the possible danger of an illegal cannabis crop in your neighbourhood," the card says, advising citizens to call police if they think they have sniffed out a plantation. Possessing and using small amounts of cannabis is tolerated in the Netherlands, as is growing up to five plants for personal use.

Computer repair bill comes to ... $20M?

All Roger Davidson — a Grammy-winning composer and heir to a massive oil fortune — wanted was to get his computer fixed.

According to authorities in New York State, he ended up being scammed out of as much as $20 million US by the computer store's owner, Vickram Bedi.

Bedi, 36, spun a bizarre story for Davidson, 58, about a multinational plot to take over the U.S. government.

Bedi and his Icelandic girlfriend, Helga Invarsdottir, now face charges in what police say was an elaborate scam, The Wall Street Journal reported.

The story begins in August 2004, when Davidson brought his malfunctioning computer into Bedi's Mount Kisco, N.Y., store.

Bedi told Davidson that the computer was infected by a suspiciously malevolent virus.

He said he had traced the virus to a hard-drive hidden in Honduras and that his uncle, an Indian army officer, had flown there to retrieve it.

However outlandish, the story appears to have convinced Davidson. He began paying Bedi and Invarsdottir for around-the-clock protection, most of it virtual.

The reported price tag for these services was $160,000 US per month.

Movies could soon watch you

New technology would measure moviegoers' emotions, movements and groupings for market research

A Canadian security surveillance company is part of a project to develop technology to watch moviegoers as they watch a movie.

Using a combination of 2-D and 3-D imaging, the technology would be able to measure emotions, groupings and movement to "revolutionize market research" at movie theatres.

"This tool will feed powerful marketing data (to) film directors, cinema advertisers and cinemas about what audiences enjoy and what adverts capture the most attention," Dr. Abdul Farooq, of the Machine Vision Laboratory at the University of the West of England in Bristol, said in a release from UWE.

"This will do what has been done manually for years in cinemas," Jessica Engler, marketing manager of Aralia, told the Star. "It's the technology aspect that scares" people.

The lab has partnered with Aralia Systems of West Sussex, England, to build the new software. Aralia in turn is in partnership with Pikaia Systems of Ottawa, which holds several pending infrared illumination patents.

The new technology would use 2-D cameras to detect emotion and 3-D cameras to measure movement.

A LESSON IN TRANSCENDING THE PAIN

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

Let's see. You just spent 69 days buried under a collapsed mine, so, to unwind, what do you do?

Well, if you're Edison Pena, you run the 42-kilometre New York City Marathon. Or in Edison's case, you hobble along on knees swollen with tendinitis, crossing the finish line in five hours 40 minutes, waving the Chilean flag and limping to one of your favourite Elvis tunes, Wonder Of You.

But I guess if you've spent 69 days buried alive, five hours 40 minutes in hell doesn't seem so bad. At least they have snacks along the way.

You would think Edison would have had enough of running — during the Chilean mining ordeal, he ran approximately 10 kilometres per day, dragging a wooden sled behind him.

But no. Edison was invited to join the VIPs for Sunday's race, the biggest in the U.S., and like any runner, he couldn't resist the urge to go the distance.

But why, Edison, why? Why not just drink in the cheers from the 40,000 plus at the start line, watch the race, then retire to your VIP suite with a brew?

"I wanted to motivate other people to transcend their own pain," he said after the race.

There you go. Whenever you feel al-Qaida has just shot off your kneecaps and left you to wander in the desert, what do you do? You transcend the pain, sport. Doesn't everyone?

"We're inspired to overcome our own pain wherever it resides ... and live another day."

In fact, this manic endurance, this indomitable will, could be what separates us from the other animals in the zoo. We think it's our brain or our capacity for language, yet dolphins, chimpanzees and pigs all seem to share our most human traits.

Except I can't think of a chimpanzee who would run 42 kilometres because he feels like it. Or even if he doesn't, because he wants to "transcend his own pain." Screw the pain, says Bonzo, and pass me a banana.

Fresh out of bananas, Edison Pena refuses to give in. As he wobbles across the finish line, we can't help it: We're inspired to overcome our own pain wherever it resides — in our knees or in our hearts — and live another day.

This makes us better than human. It gives us the strength to be good people: To understand, to forgive, to care about others. It's worth a couple of sore knees.

As for Edison, he's not satisfied running 42 kilometres on swollen knees. Next up, Graceland, and then Viva Elvis, the Cirque du soleil show in Vegas.

Talk about pain.

Murky problem: Report

Worth mentioning

Canada's lakes and rivers are awash in harmful contaminants, but new documents warn the federal government's murky understanding of the problem is putting the country at risk.

Senior bureaucrats reached that conclusion in a pair of internal reports on contaminants and excess nutrients in freshwater. The officials warned Ottawa needs to know much more about the contaminants before it can tell how dangerous they are, what happens when they mix together, or where to focus cleanup efforts.

"There are significant gaps in the understanding of contaminants in groundwater in several areas, which hinder the advancement of effective risk assessment and management activities," says one of the reports.

One report looked at contaminants in freshwater. The other was on excess nutrients, such as phosphorus and nitrogen, that cause toxic algae blooms. Giant floating fields of algae have taken over swaths of the Great Lakes, Lake Winnipeg and many other lakes across the country in recent years. The algae sucks oxygen from the water and produces toxins that are harmful to fish, humans and other living things.

▶ Apocalypse Now, made in 1979, is an example of the images we associate with the word 'war'.

Hollywood's role in the war machine

Expert says images we have of combat and camaraderie come from movies History shows alliance between film industry and government

When honouring the fallen this Remembrance Day, don't be shocked if gung-ho images of a Hollywood war movie spring to mind.

"A lot of the images that we have of effective combat or camaraderie established during the war ... come from the cinema," said University of Toronto cinema studies director Charlie Keil. "There was a direct alliance between the film industry and the government."

When the Office of War Information formed in 1942, Hollywood coordinated with the government department in order to keep a struggling film industry afloat by recording and propagating the Second World War. As such, rallying movies like Bataan (1943) or the Howard Hawks-directed hit Air Force (1943) popularized images of heroic GIs fighting the good fight.

"The war wasn't fought on American soil," explained Keil. "So it was necessary to really show the Americans what they were fighting for."

Hollywood's role doesn't end there. History is full of anti-war films like All Quiet on the Western Front and Apocalypse Now. But interestingly, these "message" movies were produced during peacetime.

"When it's clear that it's necessary to support the war, there are supporting-the-forces films," said Keil. "When there's some distance from the war, there tend to be pacifist films."

Which cinematic example best tributes the brave soldier is debatable, but Keil suggests that Jean Renoir's The Grand Illusion (1937) perhaps fittingly captures the complexity of memorializing war.

"It doesn't engage in easy 'us-versus-them' dichotomies," said Keil of Renoir's drama about the commonality between prisoners of war and their captors. "It's more about (our) frailties and, in a way, we decide from our perspective who the enemy is and who the heroes are."

Can the unseen injuries suffered by soldiers during war be cured?

A new documentary explores how post-traumatic stress disorder affects war veterans

"I am not so well. I am clear off the hooks," wrote a soldier who, discharged from the army as unfit to serve, would soon turn violent and kill himself. The year was 1864 for this Civil War veteran.

It would take more than a century for post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) to be recognized as a medical condition and to be acknowledged by the U.S. military as a fact of life.

A new HBO documentary, Wartorn: 1861-2010, charts this heartbreaking story, from the U.S. invasion of Iraq all the way back to the Civil War, whose veterans, according to the film, accounted for more than half the patients in mental institutions of that era.

James Gandolfini is an executive producer of Wartorn, which premieres tomorrow night. "We should be aware of what's happening," said Gandolfini. "Unless people start thinking about it ... it's not going to stop."

Gen. Peter Chiarelli, vice chief of staff of the U.S. Army, is working to change attitudes toward PTSD. But he concedes that resistance continues from within the military.

"You're fighting a culture ... that doesn't believe that injuries you can't see can be as serious as those injuries you can see," he tells Gandolfini.

Gandolfini says Wartorn won't change the world, but, it will have an impact. "There will be individuals who will learn things from it, so that's enough."

McAdams stands out in bland comedy

Morning Glory
Genre: Comedy
Director: Roger Michell
Stars: Rachel McAdams, Harrison Ford, Patrick Wilson, Diane Keaton, Jeff Goldblum
●●½

Don't check out Morning Glory if you're looking for an authentic take on broadcast television. In fact, watching Harrison Ford mumble away as a legendary newsman-turned-talk-show host is as convincing as it is funny — not very.

Lucky for him, Rachel McAdams as the ambitious producer that tries to make a champion morning show out of a chump gives this monotone comedy some sincerity and a charming performance. While Roger Michell has proven skill as a comedic director (Venus, Notting Hill), here he plays it pretty broad. Regardless, by the time the show (figuratively and literally) gets to the laughs, we've mostly tuned out anyhow.

Conan's debut strikes a chord

▶ Conan O'Brien's new talk show debuted last night.

Conan O'Brien relaunched his TV career on Monday night with a stylishly back-to-basics hour that radiated hard-won lessons from his brief stay hosting The Tonight Show.

With his new TBS show titled simply Conan, O'Brien seemed appealingly stoked yet comfortable in his new home at 11 p.m. ET and on basic cable, originating from a sleek, cozy set with a full moon poised on a seaside backdrop.

If there were very few surprises on the premiere, well, how could there have been after the incessant online hype and all the press attention showered on his much-anticipated return? Besides, O'Brien was back with his longtime sidekick Andy Richter and most of his trusty house band members, now led by Jimmy Vivino (and renamed The Basic Cable Band).

Even O'Brien's post-Tonight Show beard seems familiar by now.

But what's important is, the show lived up to its promises. As promised, it was looser, quirkier, more like Late Night, where O'Brien thrived for nearly 16 years, than the mainstream Tonight Show, where he didn't.

Conan opened with a funny look back at O'Brien's tumultuous year after he refused NBC's bid to move Tonight to 12:05 a.m.

He was mowed down by machine-gun-toting NBC hit men at a security booth, a la Sonny Corleone in The Godfather. He applied for a job in advertising and was turned down by Don Draper (Mad Men star Jon Hamm), who brusquely reminded him, "It's 1965 — and you're two years old." From behind the counter at a Burger King, he reminisced to an impatient customer about his talk-show past.

Likewise, his monologue mined laughs from recent history, which found him leaving Tonight in January after just eight months, with Jay Leno reclaiming the host chair.

O'Brien welcomed viewers to his "second annual first show" and explained why he named the new show Conan: "So I'd be harder to replace."

Friends star says break up with David Arquette just starting to sink in Work has been keeping her busy

While estranged husband David Arquette has been speaking freely about their split, Courteney Cox has kept mum — until now.

"I've been lying really low since David and I got separated. To tell you the truth, it's only just starting to sink in," she tells Hello! magazine. "I've been working so hard that I feel like I've been in a whirlwind."

Instead of talking about reconciliation, Cox is looking forward, adding, "I did wake up the other day when I had a quiet morning and think, 'Wow, this is ... interesting. I'm separated — now what do I do?"

Award winner

The Gasoline Alley museum at Calgary's Heritage Park Historical Village and the Au Diable Vert outdoor centre near Sutton, Que., are among winners of the 2010 National Awards for Tourism Excellence.

The museum — showcasing a rare collection of antique vehicles, air and gasoline pumps — was named new business of the year. It opened in April 2009 as part of a major expansion of the historical village.

Millions of years ago, dinosaurs roamed what are now the Badlands of Alberta
They left behind their bones, and the result is a booming tourism industry

Exploring the Dinosaurs of Drumheller

They may have been extinct for millions of years but in Drumheller dinosaurs still rule the earth.

Located about 130 kilometres northeast of Calgary, Drumheller has gone from booming coal town in the 1920s to a tourist draw that lures about 400,000 visitors a year to see dinosaur bones and hoodoos (the rock chimneys left by erosion in the Badlands).

Whether it's the Royal Tyrrell Museum of Palaeontology, stunning Horseshoe Canyon, just a few kilometres from the town of about 6,500, or Fred and Barney's Family Restaurant, you are hard-pressed in Drumheller to avoid anything dinosaur.

Murals of long dead dinosaurs adorn the sides of many town businesses and there are literally dozens of dinosaur statues, both large and small.

The nearby Badlands are one of the few areas in the world where sedimentary layers from earlier geological periods have been scraped off by natural processes, exposing a rich deposit of animal and plant fossils and even complete dinosaur skeletons.

Some 25 species of dinosaurs have been discovered since 1884 when Joseph Burr Tyrrell, the museum's namesake, discovered the first Albertosaurus skull.

The Royal Tyrrell, which opened in 1985, is arguably the tourism centrepiece in the region and is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year.

It features 10 signature galleries devoted to paleontology, with 40 dinosaur skeletons and more than 130,000 fossil specimens and takes up 11,000 square metres.

"I would think that there are very few places in the world where we haven't had visitors from," she said.

Bring on the snow ...

Colorado ski buffs are still hoping for a dose of the white stuff, but the 'sweet spot' could be further north

Ski resorts say snow trumps the economy when vacationers decide whether or not to head to the mountains.

With economists saying the recession is over, Colorado ski areas hope a hard-to-predict La Nina weather pattern can bring enough snow to make up for a warm start to October.

Melanie Mills, president of the trade group Colorado Ski Country USA, is still hopeful for snow across much of the state in the heart of winter when more people want to ski, and not just the early and late season like last winter. "With a better snow year, we think visits will tick up," she says.

Last season, overall snowfall was 26 per cent below the 10-year average.

Last season, Loveland Ski Area started running its first lift Oct. 7. This year, the first lift didn't open until Oct. 24, but unlike in past years, even runs that weren't open yet were covered in fresh snow.

A SPECIAL REPORT PRESENTED BY WESTJET

LAS VEGAS

The lure of the numbers game

Las Vegas: A neon-lit gaming getaway in the middle of the Mojave. We all know there's more to this city than the famed Strip, but its glitzy side will always define it best. For millions of annual visitors, Las Vegas is a party waiting to happen.

No wonder 17 of the 20 biggest hotels in the U.S. are found here. Often towering structures housing their own restaurants, bars and casinos, some of Las Vegas' lodgings have become landmarks in their own right. Establishments like Bellagio, Caesars Palace, Circus Circus, Mandalay Bay, and the MGM Grand draw thousands of tourists, even if those tourists are staying somewhere else. Many of them come to play.

RISK AND REWARD

Gambling's been legal in Nevada since 1931; Las Vegas' first legalized gaming establishment, the Northern Club, opened that same year. Since then, traditional games of cards and dice have been joined by race and sports book betting, made more popular by the fine seating and complimentary food and drink some casinos offer during live events. Poker is drawing more gamers to the tables than ever, while slot machines still reign supreme—drawing the attention of some 70 per cent of casino visitors. If you don't know where to begin, many Vegas casinos offer complimentary gaming lessons.

STAR POWER

Whether you're the gambling type or not, you can bet Vegas has a show you'll want to see. The city's famous for spectacular Cirque du Soleil productions and Broadway hits like Jersey Boys. And it has long been a second home for the planet's most popular live entertainers, from Liberace, Elvis Presley and the Rat Pack to the stars of today: comedians like Louie Anderson, Drew Carey and Jerry Seinfeld, and music superstars like Celine Dion, U2, Andrea Bocelli, Barbra Streisand, Madonna, and the returning Garth Brooks.

In fact, Vegas was built on this fusion of celebrity glamour, notoriety and hard cash. The infamous Benjamin 'Bugsy' Siegel opened his Flamingo Hotel here in 1946, naming the establishment in honour of his girlfriend Virginia Hill's long legs. Howard Hughes—an eccentric tycoon if there ever was one—moved to Las Vegas' Desert Inn for an extended stay in 1966. When the Inn asked him to leave, he bought it instead.

THE WINNINGS

Whether you're the gambling type or not, you can bet Vegas has a show you'll want to see. The city's famous for spectacular Cirque du Soleil productions and Broadway hits like Jersey Boys. And it has long been a second home for the planet's most popular

With so much on the table, it's no wonder Las Vegas can boast annual numbers like these:

★ Over 36 million visitors, staying an average of 3.6 nights, spending an average of US$482 on gambling alone.

★ More than 19,000 conventions, drawing more than 4 million delegates to almost 150,000 hotel and motel rooms.

★ An annual gaming revenue of $5.6 billion from the Strip alone.

Sounds like these millions of people are on to something, doesn't it? Having fun in the desert sun; striking it rich at hot table the very same night—that's a great deal, any way you cut it.

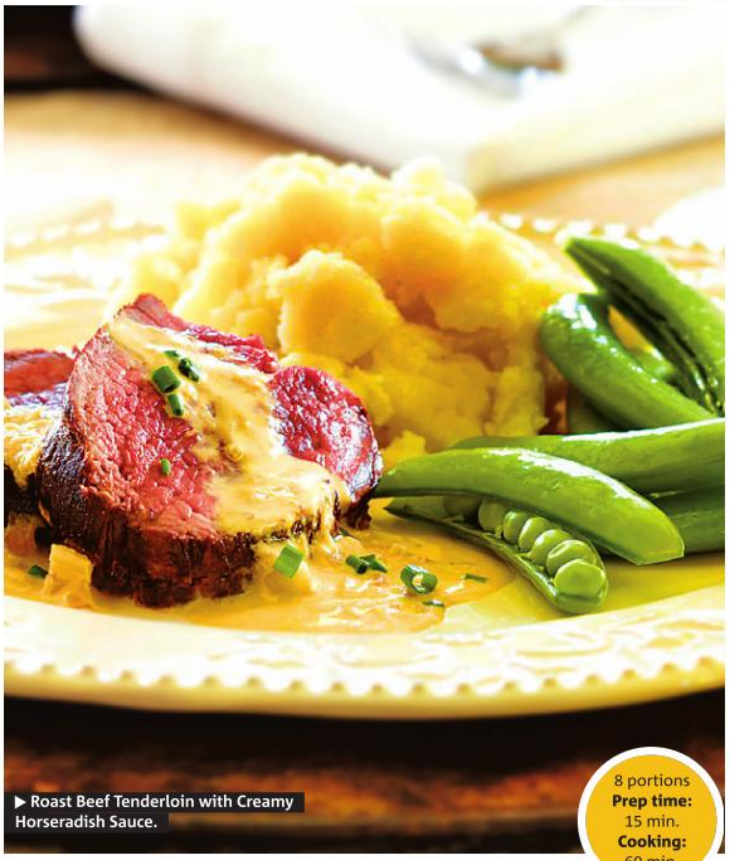
Tenderloin warms up winter

Sunday dinner will be sinfully delicious with this beef tenderloin dish

HANDOUT/THE CANADIAN PRESS



▶ Roast Beef Tenderloin with Creamy Horseradish Sauce.

8 portions
Prep time: 15 min.
Cooking: 60 min.

Ingredients :

- 1.5 kg (3 lb) beef tenderloin, trimmed and tied at regular intervals
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 5 ml (1 tsp) each coarse salt and fresh cracked pepper Horseradish Sauce
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) minced shallots
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) grainy mustard
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) prepared hot horseradish
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) each salt and fresh cracked pepper
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) beef broth
- 250 ml (1 cup) heavy cream
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) chopped fresh chives

Preparation:

1. Let beef sit at room temperature for 1 hour prior to cooking.
2. Rub roast with oil, salt and pepper. Heat a large heavy pan over high heat. Sear tenderloin on all sides just to brown, about 1 minute per side.
3. Arrange on a rack over a rimmed baking sheet or roasting pan. Transfer to a 160 C (325 F) oven and roast until meat thermometer registers 63 C (145 F) for medium-rare, 30 to 40 minutes. Transfer to a cutting board to rest for 15 minutes while making the sauce. The internal temperature will go up 3 C (5 F) in this time.
4. In a skillet, melt butter over medium-high heat. Cook shallots until tender and golden, about 8 minutes. Stir in mustard and horseradish, salt and pepper.
5. Whisk in beef broth and any juices from roast and cook until reduced by half, about 3 minutes. Stir in cream and bring to a boil; cook until it starts to thicken, about 5 minutes. Whisk in chives and serve immediately with sliced beef and preferred sides.

Stretching the truth

One third of people know someone who lied on a resume, poll suggests

RAF BRUSILOW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Little white lies have no place on your resume, although a new poll shows some people are no strangers to stretching the truth.

A recent ADP BackCheck poll has found that one-in-three people report knowing someone who has lied on their resume and three-out-of-five people polled have gotten a job without having their references checked.

The poll results suggest resume fibbing is certainly not as rare an occurrence as employers might hope suggesting more employers need to be vigilant about confirming details of a potential hire's background or else suffer the potential consequences.

"Employers think pre-employment screening takes a lot of time but it doesn't have to. The cost of a bad hire in Canada is generally one-to-three times their annual salary, so it can be really costly to an employer," said Mark Kohler, a director at ADP Canada.

In the poll, lying about previous pay or compensation led the way with 27 per cent of people saying they thought it was OK to do on a resume. Nineteen per cent of people said they felt it was OK to lie about previous responsibilities at former jobs while 17 per cent of respondents felt it was acceptable to lie about specific skills they may not actually have. Twelve per cent of people polled even suggested lying about education or credentials was fine as well.

"People want to put themselves in a better light and many believe that stretching the truth won't do any harm — but it often will," Kohler said.

Besides getting fired or demoted once you're discovered, your fibbing could make it harder to get a job in the same industry if your previous employer spreads the word about you to other employers.

If you're even slightly tempted to lie or misrepresent details on your resume, don't — instead, focus on highlighting the value of the skills you do have and why they make you a great hire. Doing so will not only prevent awkward workplace situations but also lead to a far more positive attitude and sense of confidence in yourself.

Student's lost years detailed in new memoir

Richard Rushfield, former entertainment editor of LATimes.com and Gawker, has authored a tell-all memoir of his education at Hampshire College, Don't Follow Me, I'm Lost.

Founded in 1970 as an alternative university, Hampshire had — according to Rushfield — fallen off the deep end by the time he arrived.

How have you dealt with the backlash?

It wasn't unexpected. This book is a portrayal of a specific time that wasn't their finest hour. Certainly, the spectre of students not going to class for an entire year isn't something they would put on their promotional literature.

Why were the standards so different in the '80s?

It was an affluent era in America. I don't think today's students could go through four years of any college without having any sense of what they're going to do when they graduate.

But you're an ambitious writer now. Did this experience help you find that?

I spent most of (my 20s) drifting around in jobs with no real plan. I bottomed out on that, and somehow writing presented itself. Now I've thrown myself into that with the energy I once threw into sitting on the couch for a week straight.

LOOSE LIPS CAN SINK EMPLOYER'S CASE

Workplace Law

DANIEL LUBLIN
IS AN EMPLOYMENT LAWYER
WITH WHITTEN & LUBLIN LLP.
DAN@TORONTO-EMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM

As a recent case illustrates, advice often given in the schoolyard also applies in the workplace.

In 1988, Jackie Dawydiuk commenced employment as a clerk with the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia. She was a model employee. With her strong work ethic, she worked her way up the corporate ladder.

In 2003, Dawydiuk left work weeks before she was scheduled to start a new senior management position. During her absence, her supervisor of only one month, Richard Rees, advised her that her new position had been eliminated and that, instead, ICBC was offering her a position as regional manager. Dawydiuk did not respond to Rees' offer in a timely manner and was fired. She later sued ICBC for wrongful dismissal.

During the course of the lawsuit, a human resources report prepared by Rees describing the circumstances of Dawydiuk's termination surfaced. The report, which was circulated to members of ICBC's HR team, Dawydiuk's superiors and another ICBC employee, indicated that her performance was inadequate, that she was not re-hireable, and that her rating was unsatisfactory. The report quickly became the focus of Dawydiuk's lawsuit.

"Since both employees and employers can be held responsible for their loose lips, they should carefully consider making statements, written or oral, that can be viewed as untrue or misleading."

At trial, the court found Rees' report "misleading" and stated that it reflected "a lack of decency and fairness on ICBC's part towards its former employee." ICBC argued that even if Rees was careless in forming his belief about Dawydiuk, it reflected his honest belief and he had duty to communicate it to the recipients. The court agreed with ICBC. However, it found that Rees was offside for having circulated the report to the other ICBC employee.

Consequently, ICBC was held responsible for the damage to Dawydiuk's reputation.

Courts are becoming increasingly sensitive to claims for defamation based on statements that lead to a loss of reputation at work. Since both employees and employers can be held responsible for their loose lips, they should carefully consider making statements, written or oral, that can be viewed as untrue or misleading. Without a legal, social or moral requirement to make or publish personal comments, sometimes it's just safest to refrain.

THE DUTCH WILL NEVER FORGET
Canadian veterans are our true heroes

1945 The joy of the Dutch, greeting Canadian liberators (as well as some British soldiers) in the village of Heiloo on 8 May, speaks volumes.

65 years ago, Canadian men and women in uniform played a pivotal role in the liberation of the Netherlands. "The Dutch will never forget the bravery and sacrifice of their Canadian liberators. They are our heroes", emphasizes Wim Geerts, ambassador of the Netherlands to Canada.

Canadian veterans risked their lives for the freedom of others, far away from home, often under extremely difficult circumstances. More than 7,600 Canadians died in the nine dreadful months it took to liberate the Netherlands. Many others returned home injured, physically and/or psychologically.

"In 1944-45", the Dutch ambassador says, "Canadian veterans, entering Dutch cities and villages in their army trucks, were cheered on by our people. Imagine how emotional that was: these Canadian Forces gave us back our freedom, our democracy, and our human dignity."

Over the years, many Canadian veterans have gone back to the Netherlands to commemorate and to celebrate with the Dutch. Even as recently as last May, during the 65th anniversary of the liberation, Canadian veterans participated in commemoration parades in Dutch cities and, again, received a heroes' welcome. These three pictures show our everlasting gratitude: in 1945, in 1980 and in 2010.

Our shared history has laid a solid foundation for our friendship, which has evolved and grown stronger over the years. Canada and the Netherlands are like-minded nations, sharing the same values and a vision for a common future.

Remembrance is an important topic that binds our two countries. In the Netherlands, those who survived the dark years of Nazi occupation instilled in their children, and in their children's children, a strong determination to remember. Stories have been handed down from generation to generation. About the brutality and cruelty of the occupation. But also about the heroism of our Canadian liberators.

2010 Many Dutch people shake hands with their Canadian liberators during a parade in Apeldoorn

Last week, the Netherlands Embassy organized a conference on 'The Future of Remembrance', together with the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa. Some 300 people participated in a discussion about what we can do to foster and strengthen the meaning of Remembrance Day in today's society. The conference produced new ideas about passing the torch of remembrance to younger generations.

We, the Dutch, will continue to remember our liberators.
Thank you, Canada!

Sports in brief

Tiger Woods faces his first full year without winning as a pro, but he has no doubt that his game is pointed in the right direction.

Woods is defending his title at the Australian Masters, which has moved this year to Victoria Golf Club. He won for the 82nd time in his career a year ago at Kingston Heath, and that was his last victory anywhere in the world. Just over a week later, revelations began to unfold about his extramarital affairs, which rocked his personal life and shattered his image.

Woods is not looking at his return Down Under as a chance to come full circle. He just wants to win.

Price gets payback on the Canucks

B.C.-born goalie shuts out team that lit him up 7-1 last season

2	0
CANADIENS	CANUCKS

British Columbia native Carey Price wanted nothing more than to exact revenge on the Vancouver Canucks.

The 23-year-old did just that, making 35 saves, including 20 in the third period, to lead the Montreal Canadiens to a 2-0 victory last night that ended the Canucks' six-game winning streak.

Early last season Price went into Vancouver and was swamped 7-1. When the Canucks returned the visit later in the season, Montreal won 3-2 but with the since-departed Jaroslav Halak in goal.

"It was a lot better this year," the Vancouver native said. "It's a different year.

"I really wanted to win this one and the guys knew it."

Defencemen Andrei Markov and Roman Hamrlik each scored his first goal of the season for Montreal (9-5-1). Hamrlik's third-period goal was the first in five games with a man advantage, while the Canadiens penalty killers held the Canucks' league-best power play to 0-for-4.

Price was not busy until late in the third frame, then held the fort when the Canucks went on full attack to pick up his second shutout of the season. Montreal fired 29 times on Roberto Luongo.

The Canucks (8-4-2) had not lost in regulation time in seven games in a row since a 6-2 loss to Minnesota on Oct. 19. They were shut out for the first time this season.

"We had some tough games against them, especially in their building, and for Carey to get a shutout was nice," said another B.C. product, defenceman Josh Gorges.

Luongo was pulled for an extra attacker with 2:30 left and, in the dying seconds, Price had the puck and thought for a split second about going for a goal, but dished it off instead.

"That would be pretty cool," Price said. "But nowadays the pressure is up the middle. You'd need to get a lot of wood on it."

CANUCKS DON'T FAIL TO SURPRISE

With the Vancouver Canucks hitting their stride and looking like the forceful team they were supposed to be, there are still a few elements that have been surprising. Here are a few early-season notes we didn't see coming.

1 Keith Ballard being a healthy scratch over Aaron Rome. OK, so Ballard isn't ever going to win a Norris Trophy, but he has been a serviceable, top-four defenceman who averaged well more than 20 minutes of ice time a night over the past three seasons on two Florida teams and one Phoenix team, none of which were very good.

But even though he was a big part of those soft-touch teams, his plus-minus from the past three years is a combined plus-14.

He's also been good for about 25-35 points. This year, however, Ballard's ice time is down to 13:46 per game without a single point and a minus-3 rating to his name.

2 Ryan Kesler a minus player. Like you, I'd be shocked if it remains this way after 82 games. Kesler hasn't finished as a minus player since he was minus-2 in 28 games with Vancouver and minus-4 in 33 games with AHL Manitoba in 2003-04 — his first pro season and the only minus season on his resumé.

Still, you never want to see your Selke contender sitting in the red. Kesler has eight points through 13 games and averages the most ice time among forwards on the Canucks, but has managed only three even-strength points.

The fact five of his points have come with the man advantage does nothing for his plus-minus rating.

3 Jannik Hansen stepping to the fore. The NHL draft is now only seven rounds long so if the same rules were in place back in 2004, ninth-rounder Hansen wouldn't have even been selected at all. Four players were picked later than the Dane that draft, but current NHLers Mark Streit, Daniel Winnik and Kyle Wilson went a little earlier in the round. Hansen is establishing himself as a more prominent penalty-killer and is flashing the body a lot more.

The team spent the summer upgrading the third line so it's refreshing to see a homegrown talent taking leaps and bounds towards becoming reliable in that role.

Is it an Acura? A new-style Buick? The new Kia Optima joins the ranks of some of the most stylish vehicles on the road — and makes a strong technical showing

▶ The 2.0T is the sporty one of the bunch with 274 horsepower.

Daring, dashing new Kia will surprise you

▶ The Optima features an attractive display panel.

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

Prepare to be startled. And prepare to forget about the previous-generation Kia Magentis that was about as anonymous as a sedan could be.

As with the recently released Sorento and Sportage wagons, plus 2010's Forte Koup coupe and boxy Soul, the new Optima (the Magentis adopts the U.S. name) is a visual shot to the solar plexus, but not in any outrageous way. Kia has simply elevated the styling to a new artistic high from which the competition could learn a thing or three.

Kia uses the latest Hyundai Sonata platform (Kia is part of the Hyundai family) as its starting point and then adds its own special sheetmetal to make the Optima just about the sleekest sedan on the road.

The spit and polish extends to the passenger compartment with an attractive display panel that's angled toward the driver, but not so much as to deprive anyone seated in the shotgun position from access to the communications and audio controls.

▶ The spacious interior is equally stylish.

The Optima's larger interior — in part created by a 7.5-centimetre gain in distance between the front and rear wheels — helps provide greater rear-seat space. Wider doors also make for easier back-seat entry and exit.

Also increased are the outputs of the base and optional powerplants, which mirror those of the Sonata. The starting point is a 2.4-litre four-cylinder that provides 200 horsepower and 186 pound-feet of torque. That's a gain of 25 horsepower and 17 pound-feet over the outgoing engine of equal displacement.

Later in the model year, you'll be able to order your Optima with a fuel-saving gasoline-electric hybrid system that matches a 2.4-litre four-cylinder with a 30-kilowatt electric motor to make 209 net horsepower.

A six-speed manual transmission is available only in the base 2.4-litre LX model, while a six-speed automatic is optional in the LX, but standard in the up-level models.

The base model comes with standard air conditioning, tilt/telescoping steering wheel, glove-box cooler and various power-operated amenities. At the far end of the scale, full-load sedans come with dual-zone climate control, eight-way power driver's seat and a sport-tuned suspension.

Options include a panoramic sunroof, navigation system with backup camera plus heated and cooled front seats.

The Optima arrives later this year with an estimated $22,000 base price, although a low price point is no longer the predominant reason to look at this Korean brand. Quite the opposite. Love the style and be surprised at how little it will cost you to get behind the wheel.

New contender

DON'T LEAVE TRACTION TO TECHNOLOGY

Auto Pilot

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE@METROEWS.CA

Every time I feel the need to discuss grip, I talk to Pierre Savoy, chief instructor of the BMW Canada Winter Driving School.

Pierre knows grip like Sponge Bob knows Crabby Patties.

Pierre's focus at this time of year, just before or during our first dumps of snow, is that people understand the limitations of their fancy, schmancy all-wheel-drive (AWD) and/or 4x4 systems.

"If the weather is bad — snow, sleet, ice — the AWD system will excel at putting that power down, because it does that with four wheels rather than two," he says. "But this is where the problem starts. Since the system is so proficient at putting down power, the driver immediately gets a false sense of the real amount of grip that's available for braking or steering."

This is why the first vehicle you see in a ditch on that first snowy day of the season is usually some kind of 4x4 or AWD vehicle.

Another way of appreciating this split personality of an AWD/4x4 system is to remember that it will only do its thing when "under power" — basically any time you touch the gas pedal. Any other time, like when you're entering a corner and moving through the corner to the point where you can accelerate, your vehicle's traction is limited, like every one else on the road, to what your tires can provide for that surface.

CONTRIBUTED

▶ An AWD or 4x4 system will only do its thing when "under power," often giving drivers a false sense of power in winter driving conditions.

He adds that the best technical feature that can help either a 2WD or 4WD vehicle get around a corner safely, especially when a vehicle approaches the physical limit of available grip, is weight distribution. The closer the vehicle is to a 50/50 front/back weight distribution, the better it will corner.

Stability control systems also help stabilize vehicles in a corner, but like AWD systems, they are reactionary — they kick in only when you've already exceeded your allotted amount of grip.

They kick in faster than you can blink — no question they are amazing and work as advertised.

But relying on them to tell you how fast to go through a corner is like using a smoke detector to tell you when the lasagna is done.

for cellphones a smart idea?

GENERAL MOTORS

▶ Apps can keep tabs on and remotely operate functions of your car. Does that open the floodgates to hackers?

AUTO KNOW

TOM JENSEN
WHEELBASE MEDIA
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Through telematics, automobile owners can lock and unlock and even start their cars, all with their cellphones. Telematics empowers global positioning satellite tracking for in-car navigation systems and even allows cars to communicate with the Internet to receive emails, download digital audio files and monitor tire pressure. And there's much more to come.

Still very much in its infancy, the industry is already booming: Oyster Bay, N.Y.-based ABI Research estimates that the number of global telematics users will explode to more than 211 million by the year 2015, from 37 million this year.

Ford's SYNC system, found in more than two million cars already, uses a Microsoft operating system to let drivers make telephone calls through their Bluetooth-wireless devices in conjunction with speakers and microphones built into the car. SYNC also lets drivers use voice commands to operate the car's entertainment system.

OnStar, the Detroit-based General Motors subsidiary, has sent out more than 146,000 automatic crash notifications since 1996, according to company statistics.

But as with any new technology, there are concerns. For one, the combination of on-board computers and wireless devices opens up the very real possibility of hacking.

A study by researchers at the ETH Zurich science and technology university in Switzerland showed that hackers could use what are called "relay attacks" using signals sent between two wireless devices, one in proximity to a car and the other near its key.

A similar study by researchers at the University of South Carolina and New Jersey's Rutgers University found that on-board computers were vulnerable to attack through the wireless tire pressure monitoring systems.

Then there's the issue of privacy. The U.S. auto-insurance industry is leading a push to use telematics devices to monitor drivers: Where they drive, when they drive, and how fast they drive.

Be that as it may, the telematics boom is just beginning, and whatever concerns exist are unlikely to slow, much less stop, the latest forefront of automotive technology.

Vegetables: The future of automobiles?

AUTO KNOW

JOE JNYCHA
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

Mom always said to eat your vegetables; they're vital ingredients in anyone's diet. Packed with vitamins, minerals and fibre, they provide the stuff that keeps a body going.

But mom could never have known how important veggies — or more specifically, vegetable fibre — would one day become to keep people going in another way: Through the movement of automobiles.

▶ Many of the Kestrel electric car's parts and pieces are made from advanced plant-based plastics.

Car parts made with plant-based "bio-composite" materials are finding favour with automakers for their lightweight, strength, durability and competitive costs of production, compared with traditional compounds made with man-made glass fibres and petrochemicals derived from oil.

Bio-composites have been around since the 1920s, when Henry Ford built prototype car components — including dashboards, door panels and passenger compartment parts — out of hemp-derived plastics.

As the industry overall adopts an attitude of sustainability in manufacturing and in the products it makes, veggie-based bio-composites are taking on newfound importance across the industry.

The parts are not made from raw vegetables; instead, their fibres and chemicals are broken down at microscopic levels and reformed into usable compounds.

Scientists say bio-composites are, pound for pound, stronger than steel and are lighter and cheaper to produce than traditional petroleum-based plastics.

"A car made mostly of heated, treated and molded bio-fibre would simply be buried at the end of its lifetime," said Lawrence T. Drzal of Michigan State University's Composite Materials and Structures Centre, "and would be consumed naturally by bacteria."

Working with academic researchers and one of its suppliers, the Ford Motor Company is the first automaker to develop and use environmentally-friendly wheat-straw-reinforced plastic in a vehicle.

A "hemp-infused" bio-composite bodied electric car concept, called the Kestrel, was recently unveiled in Calgary, by Motive Industries Inc. The company says its manufacturing techniques will allow the vehicle to be made profitably at smaller initial volumes.

Motive president Nathan Armstrong said a major advantage to using advanced composites versus metal are increased impact absorption, rust resistance and reduced weight.

Where a steel-stamped vehicle will absorb impact by crumpling under pressure, "a composite vehicle will absorb energy, then return to its original shape."

Last-gen A6 owners can brag about their smooth, sleek set of wheels

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Few vehicles can help Canadian drivers get over the winter blahs like a premium European luxury sedan equipped with All Wheel Drive (AWD). Audi is arguably the world's leading manufacturer of premium AWD cars, and its A6 is a luxury sedan or wagon that brings decades of Quattro AWD history into the same marketplace as the Mercedes-Benz E-Class and BMW 5-Series.

The last generation of Audi's luxurious mid-range cruiser was sold in the Canadian market from 1998 to 2004.

The specs

- MODEL 1998 to 2004 Audi A6
- VEHICLE TYPE Sedan or wagon
- APPROXIMATE USED PRICE RANGE $4,000 to $15,000

What owners like

Last-gen A6 owners typically rave about gorgeous interiors, a smooth and comfortable driving experience, great all-weather traction, generous interior space and smooth performance.

What owners hate

Cupholders, a dated driver computer readout, and meeker-than-expected performance with the 2.8-litre engine were common complaints. The A6 is a heavy machine, too, so fuel mileage isn't one of its strongest attributes, either.

Common issues

If considering a unit with the 2.7-litre turbo engine, especially with higher mileage, approach the vehicle assuming the turbochargers are worn out and need replacement. A check by a certified Audi mechanic familiar with the vehicle can prove otherwise.

The verdict

End of the day, a clean, well-maintained and trouble-free A6 should prove a tremendously comfortable year-round cruiser for years to come. Like many of its German competitors, it should boast solid drivetrain reliability, with most issues being electronic in nature. As such, shoppers are advised to opt for an extended warranty where possible.

▶ The Audi A6 features heated and motorized leather seating, wood trim and premium audio with CD changer.

THE FORMULA FOR FUN

Hard-core gamers already know this, but for the rest of us, the news is that the latest open-wheel Grand Prix racing game has now hit the market.

Developed by game creators Codemasters, F1 2010 features high-resolution images of all of the teams competing in the 2010 Formula One racing season along with all 19 of the participating track venues from around the world. Players have the ability to customize their selected team's race cars, according to track type and race conditions, including rain. The racing is highly realistic, as is the pit action (Codemasters used motion capture technology to make it look like the real thing).

The game is for PlayStation 3, Xbox 360, PSP, Wii and home computers for about $60 US from your local video game reseller, or for about $40 US downloaded directly onto your computer. Get all the game details at formula1-game.com.

Ridin' clean

A cabin air filter will help clear the air in your auto, and more

According to an industry study, 95 percent of vehicle owners are concerned about air quality inside their car.

Taking it a step further, beyond helping to keep the cabin air clean and allergen levels low, did you know that a cabin air filter also helps protect (and maintains optimal performance of) the vehicle's heating and air conditioning system?

The cabin air filter represents one of the automotive hot buttons for consumers, as it helps clean the air they breathe and keep their ventilation system in working order.

When the heating and air conditioning system become congested with particles, typically from an old or faulty cabin air filter, it's susceptible to debris, dirt and corrosion. The more clogged the filter, the less efficient it will be, as it has to work harder to move air in and out.

Regarding installation, refer to your owner's manual to see where the cabin air filter is located, and either you or your mechanic can put the new one in.

Additionally, most cabin air filter manufacturers include instructions on replacement directly on the packaging.

You may not think your vehicle has a cabin air filter, but they have become standard equipment in most vehicles during the last 20 years.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Most likely you haven't done anything you would be arrested for but because some people don't agree with your aims you may try to hide what you've been up to. Don't. You've done nothing wrong.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 If you allow yourself to fall for someone's charms today you could be inviting a whole lot of trouble into your life.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If what others expect of you is different to what you expect of yourself don't change your ways just to stay in their good books. The planets urge you to be a bit more selfish than usual.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 You will be at your very best today: both at home and at work you will dazzle with your wit and your wisdom.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Someone is scheming to make life difficult for you, so be on your guard today and be wary of situations where you are likely to be out of your depth.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 It may annoy you that a friend or a family member seems incapable of seeing your side of the story but getting hot under the collar about it won't change a thing.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 What happens over the next 24 hours may be unsettling but it's not the end of the world – not nearly – so don't panic.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Take care not to read too much into what happens today, especially where affairs of the heart are concerned, The signals you are getting are liable to be twisted to such an extent that you get the wrong end of the stick entirely.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Are you being allowed to express yourself in the way that you would like? If not, make an extra special effort today to put forward your opinions.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 It may seem as if someone is trying to deceive you – all the signs are there – but can you be sure? Chances are you have allowed your mind to interpret those signs in completely the wrong way.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Authority figures of one stripe or another have been very helpful of late but don't push your luck and demand too much of them.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Your belief in yourself has taken a bit of a dive and the best way to deal with your waning self-confidence is to set yourself a challenge that demands the very best of you.
